

TREVOR MCCAULEY

I am a native of Royal Oak, Michigan. I was exposed to both 2-D art and Ceramics at Redford Catholic Central High School. While attending the University of Michigan, all my elective classes were art classes. I took a variety of classes which included drawing, painting, sculpture, and ceramics.

In October 2010, I was able to showcase my digital photography as the Royal Oak Art Council's Artist of The Month. Post college I have mainly focused on photography, ceramics and scratch board collages. Besides fine art I have published three poetry books and I continue to compose piano music. I currently live in McBain, MI with my wife Heather and my daughter Gwendolyn.

WHY I CREATE?

I create out of a desire to understand my world better. Most of my work comes from processing a quiet place and then being able to activate that into the tangible realm. Every media takes its own time, takes its own activation energy to build and to create a final project. Creating brings me joy, it helps me bring and reflect beauty back into the world.
